

I am firmly opposed to the Restoring Internet Freedom proceeding, and firmly in support of net neutrality. The title of this proceeding is ridiculously misleading. We need to differentiate between corporate freedom and human freedom — the freedom of citizens. Net neutrality needs to be protected. The internet is (or ought to be) a public utility and should be protected as such.